A SOCIAL ORDER FOUNDED ON SLAVERY.

REHEARSAL FOR RECONSTRUCTION

The Port Royal Experiment

Willie Lee Rose

Introduction by C. Vann Woodward. The Allan Nevins Prize, the Francis Parkman Prize, the Sydnor Prize for Southern History, and nomination for a National Book Award greeted the original publication in 1964 of this account of an attempt to apply reconstruction in the Sea Islands of South Carolina. "Assuredly a definitive work." —Henry Steele Commager, The New York Times Book Review. Cloth, $15.95; Paper, $4.95

THIS SPECIES OF PROPERTY

Slave Life and Culture in the Old South

Leslie Howard Owens

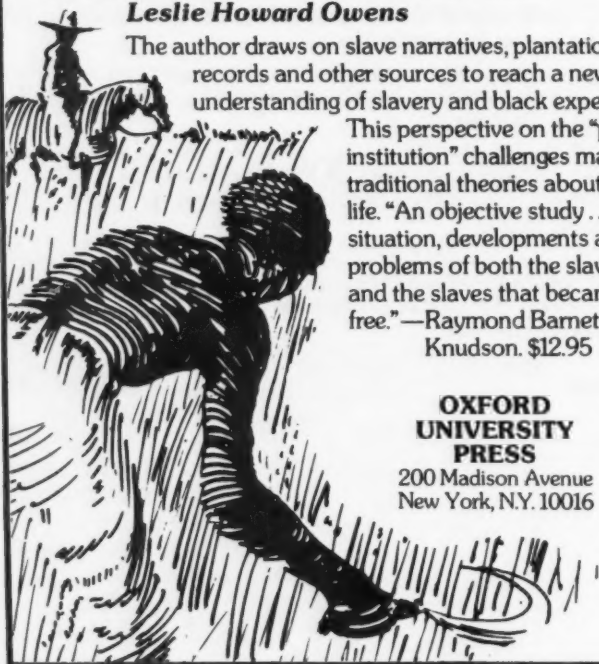

The author draws on slave narratives, plantation records and other sources to reach a new understanding of slavery and black experience.

This perspective on the "peculiar institution" challenges many traditional theories about slave life. "An objective study... of the situation, developments and problems of both the slaves and the slaves that became free." —Raymond Barnett

Knudson. $12.95

The Antislavery Appeal

American Abolitionism after 1830

Ronald G. Walters

"More than another study of the abolitionists, this manuscript promises to be a major intellectual breakthrough in the study of the reform spirit in ante-bellum America. It is, in my judgement, the best study — fully informed, original, lucid, imaginative, and highly readable — of the genesis and ideological development of post-1830 antislavery. The range and depth of Ron Walters' examination, the sensitivity with which he handles such a varied, diverse, and often eclectic group of people, and his mature command of the sources should generate considerable excitement in a field of study that has long been characterized by facile and unimaginative scholarship" — Leon F. Litwak, University of California, Berkeley $11.00
